Prosperity

proactive in nature, the course will pose central questions as to how we might maintain prosperity in a way that serves the welfare of all.

6th June - Good Husbandry: Ian Mason - Barrister and Head of Economics Faculty of the School of Economic Science

Human progress and prosperity depend on the Earth that sustains us.

We face a century in which the human population is expected to increase from six to nine billion people.

What effect will this have on Earth's abundance, and what can we do to help the Earth provide for everyone?

13th June - Good Faith: Donald Lambie - Barrister and Senior Tutor of the School of Economic Science

How has society embodied good faith in its laws and values?

How does it affect the relations between people in society and what is its connection with prosperity?

20th June - Abundance and Gratitude: Sherry Moran - Founder and Managing Director of an E-learning company

The universe operates through dynamic exchange.

What comprises wealth and abundance?

Is there any substance to the phrase 'as you give so shall you receive'?

How does it work?

How can you give when you believe you lack?

27th June - Ethical Business: Chris Rees - Director of a business ethics training and consultancy company, co-author of 'From Principles to Profit'

Prosperity depends on ethical business. But what if your ethical approach is challenged?

What is the effect of unethical business practices?

By what principles should you act? How should you make decisions?

4th July - Wealth Creation: Paul Palmarozza - Director of a business ethics training and consultancy company, co-author of 'From Principles to Profit'

The role of business in society is the creation of wealth for the benefit of all.

How does one create wealth?

What are the qualities of creativity and when are we most creative?

What is true wealth?

Will money, fame, power and pleasure bring you lasting happiness?
